Re-election of Darby in Public Interest

A good citizen, a successful businessman, an able and conscientious public official with a record of 25 useful years in office, Raymond V. Darby is a candidate for re-election to the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors from the 4th District.

Taking a responsible part in the general work of the five-member Board of Supervisors, Darby has been particularly active in expanding beach recreational areas and facilities, more than 90% of the county's beach frontage being in his district.

He faces seven opponents in the June 3 primaries.

It speaks well for the incumbent that an objective scrutiny of his accomplishments on the Supervisorial board clearly demonstrates the wisdom of re-electing him despite the unquestioned capabilities of some who are opposing him.

He has shown great initiative in serving the needs of the community's rapidly expanding industrial and commercial centers. He is an advocate of government on a basis of pay as you go.

Darby's claims upon public confidence and support are not relative or comparative; he has served his district and the entire county of Los Angeles devotedly and ably during his seven years as a Supervisor. His background includes wide business experience and 18 years in the municipal government of Inglewood, during 14 of which he served as Mayor.

His sound judgment and wide knowledge of business procedure and governmental functions have been invaluable in the deliberations of a body that faces a multiplicity of problems involving a population greater than any one of 30 States.

Because of his integrity, his ability and his energetic attention to the responsibilities and the opportunities of the office he holds, The Times recommends Darby's re-election at the primary.
